City council overrides mayor's veto

By Quinn Suomala Staff Writer

HOLYOKE - The City Council voted 10-3 to override Mayor Joshua Garcia's veto of the two-thirds majority ordinance the council had passed previously.

Initially, the council had passed this ordinance with an 11-2 vote and then sent it to the mayor's office, where he then

The council had first discussed this veto at their meeting on Aug. 6, and after discussion they had placed the matter on the table to be discussed at a future meeting.

Following this, at their meeting on Sept. 4, the council had failed to pass the override, with only an 8-5 vote when a two thirds majority was required. They then made a motion to reconsider their actions and put the item back on the table.

At this meeting, the council appeared to have come to a majority consensus and voted to override the veto.

This ordinance made it so a two thirds majority was required to pass all ordinances and that

Flag raised to celebrate Recovery Day

By Quinn Suomala Staff Writer

HOLYOKE - The city of Holyoke celebrated Recovery Day with a march through the city and a flag raising on Friday, Sept. 20, put on by Hope for Holyoke.

This day celebrates all of those who are recovering or recovered from addiction.

"It's really a great day," Highway to Hope Coordinator and Production Manager at Hope for Holyoke Kevin LeBeau said. "We'll be celebrating people in recovery, celebrating that recovery is possible."

This celebration started with a march from Holyoke Heritage State Park to Veterans Park to City Hall. This march is a way for the attendees to show off their pride in those who are recovering from addiction.

"People will be holding signs and...they will be chanting during the march," LeBeau said. "You see people laugh, put their fists in the air and scream and holler that recovery is possible."

Once at City Hall, those at the event got to witness the Recovery Month flag raising, and Mayor Joshua Garcia reading a proclamation declaring the day Recovery Day in Holyoke.

After this portion of the celebration was complete, the conscientious.

Those who are dominant tend to be very results-oriented, decisive and direct. Those who are interactive tend to be enthusiastic, optimistic and social.

The supportive types are good listeners, helpful and consistent. Conscientious people are detail-oriented, logical and systematic.

Gaingrande hoped that this presentation would help people to be able to better communicate in their daily

"I think communication is at the root of a lot of different things we face in our lives,' Giangrande said. "So learning about communicating more effectively with people in our lives spans all types of lives, so having that ability is really important."

Throughout the presentation, Giangrande used different birds to represent the personality types. Eagles represented dominant, parrots the interactive, doves the supportive and owls the conscientious.

City names senior center entrance after citizen

- Patti Divine

By Quinn Suomala Staff Writer

HOLYOKE - Barbara Bernard was a longtime resident of Holyoke who had a significant impact on the city.

To honor her, the city unveiled a sign naming the Pine Street entrance of the Senior Center "Barbara Bernard Way" as a thanks to her for all she did for the seniors of Holyoke.

"She was a really great lady and she is definitely going to be missed by a lot of people,"

City Councilor Patti Divine said. "She was a very dear friend of mine."

Divine hopes that this sign will help to keep Bernard's memory alive for the people of Holyoke.

Bernard was a crucial member of the Holyoke community during her lifetime, and Divine and many others want to ensure that her legacy is not forgotten.

Mayor Joshua Garcia and Mayor Domenic Sarno from Springfield have both dedicated July 13 as Barbara Bernard day, as that was her birthday.

"It was her 97 birthday and we went out to dinner with > her daughters and the mayor gave her a proclamation, and she was really very proud of that," Divine said.

Bernard attended Mount Holvoke

College and, after leaving, established an endowment with interest going to a student in need. She did the same at Our Lady of the Elm's College.

During her time in school, Bernard worked several jobs,

Holyoke Community honored with workforce award

HOLYOKE – Holyoke Community College recently received the "Igniting Workforce Success" award from the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission for a cybersecurity training program it runs in partnership with the agency, which recently changed its name to MassAbility.

Specifically, the award recognizes HCC for its CyberOps training program, a free, nine-month remote program that trains MassAbility consumers to be cybersecurity analysts. MassAbility works with people with disabilities to empower their lives through counseling and various career and employment programs.

Kermit Dunkelberg, vice president of adult basic education and workforce development, accepted the award on behalf of HCC at the MRC's Igniting Workforce Success conference in June.

'We just completed our fourth year with MassRehab," said Dunkelberg. "This award is a great recognition of that partnership. In MassRehab, which is now They bring as much to the table as we do in terms of innovation and attentiveness to student success.'

The pilot program launched by HCC and MassRehab in 2020 was the first of its kind in Massachusetts. Based on the program's success, MRC launched a second with Roxbury Community College, which also received an Igniting Workforce Success award.

'Together we are re-envisioning employment and people's lives," MassAbility Commissioner Toni Wolf said in 2020 after the first cohort of students graduated from the HCC program. "In the wake of COVID-19, our perspective on what is possible for remote work is expanding on a daily basis, particularly how resilient and adaptive people with disabilities are. These Cisco certifications are nationally recognized and highly sought-after workplace credentials that will give these students the needed leverage to enter a high paying industry.'

Since 2020, about 60 MassRehab MassAbility, we have a great partner. clients have gone through the program, many emerging with paid internships that have led to full time, benefitted positions as cybersecurity analysts.

"It was MassRehab's vision to offer training in the area of cybersecurity," said Dunkelberg. "This is by far the longest duration program that they run and the most expensive, because it is not only a long duration, but very intensive. These students are studying 30 hours a week for about 10 months, so it ends up being 900 hours of training, but the difference that it can make in someone's life is huge in terms of economic self-sufficiency."

Once students complete the training, they take exams to qualify as Cisco Certified Support Technicians and Cisco Certified Networking Associates. Past program graduates have gone on to work as cybersecurity consultants and systems analysts for big tech companies, such as Dell Technologies.

"The story we always like to tell is one about a participant from our first program class who was making pizza at Big Y," Dunkelberg said. "Upon conclusion of the program he was making $80,000 a year as a consultant."

Other students have more modest but no less meaningful career outcomes, Dunkelberg said.

We've had four or five students intern here at HCC in our IT department," he said. "For a lot of people, just getting that hands-on experience is the next step. Another one of our students got a job working in IT support at her local library, and that was just what she needed. Her family told us that before she went through our program, she hardly had a life outside her home. Having a job she could walk to was the perfect outcome for her."

In 2023, program instructor Dalip Singh received the Above and Beyond Award from the Cisco Networking Academy for developing and teaching the cybersecurity class.

Overall, the program has been so successful, Dunkelberg said the agency wants to explore new training partnerships with HCC.

Liquor licenses need renewal

HOLYOKE - The City's License Board reminds all Holyoke liquor license holders that it is the time for renewing alcohol licenses for the year 2025.

Every year the renewal process begins with notices being sent by the Building Department to schedule site inspections. The first round of notices to license holders was sent Aug. 20. A second notice to schedule inspections was sent Sept. 9.

In order to renew a liquor license, license holders' on-premises businesses must be inspected, and a renewal application must be filed with the License Board. Applications need to include proof of insurance, a Tax Clearance form from the tax collector's office, Certificate of Good Standing by the Department of Revenue, Workers Compensation, and a copy of TIPS Certificate for all employees. Only completed applications will be reviewed by the License Board. Once okayed, license renewals are forwarded to the ABCC for final approval.

During the second week of October, alcohol renewals from the License Board will be mailed to establishments that have followed the renewal protocols.

All license holders need to submit their renewal application in the month of November. Any renewal application not signed and filed by November 30 will be treated as a new license.

Aaron Vega, director of the City's Office of Planning and Economic Development, said Holyoke "is proud of all the different restaurants in the City, and we look forward to promoting your business in the new year. But we need to have compliance when it comes to liquor licenses issued in the city. The liquor license is an important asset, and the yearly renewal is critical to stay in good standing and not risk the loss of a license, which would hurt the owner and the City.

"We look forward to working with you this renewal season in a positive and productive way to ensure compliance," Vega said.

For the first time since 1999, Holyoke is updating its Comprehensive Plan, a Commonwealth-mandated document under that requires Massachusetts cities and towns to maintain a plan for their long-term physical development. Through comprehensive plans, cities and towns envision aspirational futures for themselves and identify implementation pathways for achieving those aspirations. These plans span all aspects of physical development, from the types of housing available in the community, to how people get around, to the community's resilience to climate change, and more. Holyoke is committed to shaping the new comprehensive plan through engagement with residents. This fall, the City will host a series of community listening sessions. Free food featuring local restaurants and free youth activities will be provided. These sessions will be bilingual. Live Spanish interpretation will be available, and materials will be displayed in Spanish and English. HCC Vice President Amanda Sbriscia named to advisory board for college foundations

HOLYOKE - Amanda Sbriscia, vice president of Institutional Advancement at Holyoke Community College and executive director of the HCC Foundation, has been named to the Council of Foundation Leaders for the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges.

The association (AGB) provides leadership and guidance to the governing boards of its member institutions. The Council of Foundation Leaders is an advisory committee that includes foundation professionals from 25 U.S. colleges and universities.

Sbriscia is one of only two council members representing a community college and the only one from Massachusetts.

"It's an honor and a privilege to serve as a member of the Council on Foundation Leaders," said Sbriscia. "Community colleges are hubs for educational and economic opportunity, and I commend AGB for including this voice around the table."

The HCC Foundation became a member of AGB in 2020 to help its board of directors navigate a complex bylaw revision process.

"Since then, AGB has been an invaluable resource that has elevated our work and helped us continuously strive for excellence in board governance," said Sbriscia. "I look forward to learning from my colleagues at other institutions of all sizes, and also hope to contribute meaningfully to help us all navigate the changing education and fundraising landscape."

In 2023, the HCC Foundation board of directors received the AGB's John W. Nason Award, which is given annually to foundation boards that demonstrate exceptional leadership and initiative.

Guided by AGB, the HCC Foundation recently completed an 18-month strategic planning process to ensure its alignment with HCC's vision and priorities.

As vice president of the division of Institutional Advancement, Sbriscia oversees the offices of development, grants, alumni relations, and marketing, and serves as executive director of the HCC Foundation, the nonprofit fundraising corporation for the college. The HCC Foundation manages assets of $25.3 million, including an endowment of $18.3 million, the largest community college endowment in Massachusetts.

Sbriscia holds a bachelor's degree in communication from Cedar Crest College, a master's degree in higher education from Drexel University, and a doctorate in education in educational leadership from Gwynedd Mercy University.

Last year, she was selected for a fellowship for aspiring college presidents by the AGB Institute for Leadership & Governance in Higher Education, a collaborative venture of the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges (AGB), Miami University, and AGB Search, a search firm for college and university administrators.

Extending the life of summer annuals

It was a lot of fun decorating the porch in an autumnal theme this afternoon. The switch over from summer to fall always poses a dilemma for me, though. Do I throw out the summer annuals or try and overwinter them?

Or maybe I should take a cutting instead and keep them going that way. Hmmm.

I usually end up at least trying to keep the annuals that I love, and if successful they become houseplants of sort. There are geraniums, coleus and fuchsias that are now part of my plant family.

Perhaps you too are trying to decide whether or not to haul these annuals or others off to the compost pile. If you are up for an experiment, why not consider taking a few cuttings.

Read, on, straight from the archives to learn the skill.

Getting a piece of stem to form roots is relatively easy. Here are a few tips that will guarantee your success.

First, make sure that the plant you are taking the cuttings from, called the "stock plant," is insect and disease-free and well hydrated.

Plan to take cuttings in the morning before the heat of the day has a chance to cause any wilting.

A clean, sharp pair of scissors or hand pruners is the best tool for the job. Cuttings can be taken at any time during the growing season; in the fall, sooner is better than later.

Begin by examining your stock plant. Those stems with the closest placed nodes are the best choice for cutting material.

Nodes are the point on the stem from which the leaves grow. There is a strong accumulation of hormones in this area; for that reason, stem cuttings are taken just after a node.

Terminal cuttings, (those from the growth tip) three to four inches long are desirable. It is tempting to take longer pieces, figuring that the end result will be a larger plant.

These are likely to wilt before they root or take a very long time to root because the stems are woodier the further down you go. Play it safe with stout cuttings.

There are all kinds of potting mediums in which to place the cutting while it is grows roots. Ideally it should be able to hold enough moisture to keep the cutting turgid yet not hold so much that it rots the stem.

Sand, perlite, and soilless potting mixes have all been used with success. Water is not recommended as "watery roots" will have a harder time adapting to potting soil later on.

I have had good luck rooting cuttings in peat-based potting mixes that are formulated for seed starting. Moisten the material well and fill your clean container of choice up to the top and tamp it down.

Cut only a few cuttings at a time so that wilting doesn't occur while you prepare the stems for insertion into the growing medium. Strip off the bottom one-third of leaves from the cutting.

If you wish to shorten the amount of time it takes for rooting to occur a commercial rooting hormone can be used. These come in powder or liquid forms. Follow the directions on the container. I have found that "less is more" when using these products.

When you are ready to "stick" the cutting make an indentation into the growing medium with a pencil or dibble first- do not push in with the stem! After the cutting is inserted firm around it well so that it stays in place.

Put the container, cuttings and all in a clear plastic bag and place in a shady location. The humidity within the bag ought to prevent the stems from wilting. Water well, only about once weekly.

After a month or so roots will begin to form.

Transplanting into individual pots can be done once the roots equal or surpass the size of the cutting. I like to start out with a small pot and transplant up a size or two at a time as the plant grows.

Most annuals prefer a cool but sunny location in the house to overwinter.

Should my husband file and then suspend his benefits?

Dear Rusty

My financial advisor used a computer program, which told my husband to take his SS at age 68, then suspend it after a few months. What I understood was if my husband started and then stopped taking distributions, he would earn delayed retirement credits and thus get more at age 70. I know waiting increases SS amounts, by 8% a year, but does purposely starting and then stopping SS increase distributions even more?

en more?
Signed Confused

Dear Confused

Suspending receipt of one's SS benefits after their Full Retirement Age as in your husband's case does result in him earning Delayed Retirement Credits, but the DRCs earned accumulate at the same rate as if he simply waited longer to claim his SS benefit in the first place. DRCs are earned up to 70 years of age, at which point your husband's maximum SS benefit is attained. FYI, DRCs earn .667% of additional benefit for each month benefits are delayed or suspended or 8% per year.

But I see no advantage to your husband starting his benefits now at 68 and then suspending them several months later to earn DRCs, the number of DRCs earned are the same in either case, so he could simply wait to apply for his Social Security benefits until he is 70 to get his maximum amount.

The only rationale I can think of to claim and then suspend after doing so is to get a few months of his benefit payments before suspending. But the few months he received benefits before suspending will be considered when he later unsuspends his benefit, so that his total payment amount will be a bit less at 70 than it would otherwise be if he simply waits longer to claim SS.

And, just for information, he can't "file and suspend" his benefits so that you can receive a spousal benefit from him. That option to file and suspend, enabling a spouse to receive benefits was eliminated by the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 while your husband's benefits are suspended, you cannot receive a spousal benefit from him.

So, frankly, I see no advantage to your husband claiming his benefit now and then suspending them a few months later. If his goal is to maximize his SS benefit, then the best way to do that is simply wait longer to claim

He, and others at Take Flight Learning, use these birds to symbolize the personality types as they feel it makes them all easier to remember.

"We use those four different birds because it is more friendly to remember and it makes it easier to apply," Giangrande said. "And people are able to have a little bit more fun with it."

Additionally, Giangrande broke it down so the personalities were placed along different poles. The eagles and parrots tend to be more fast paced and verbal, while doves and owls are more evenpaced and reserved.

Furthermore, doves and parrots tend to be more people-oriented while eagles and owls are more task-oriented.

During the presentation, Giangrande showed clips of characters from different movies that exemplified different personality types.

For example, he showed a clip of Buddy the Elf from Elf, who he described as a perfect example of an Interactive type or a parrot.

He hoped that by showing these clips people could get a more firm understanding of the different personality

Giangrande also made sure to emphasize that while everyone has a certain personality type that is more forefront, that does not mean they can't have characteristics of other personality types.

Giangrande hoped that through this presentation, people would learn how to better interact and work with others.

"A lot of it is focused on improving communication and what I really love about it is how it is focused on not just your professional life, but your personal life as well," Giangrande said.

He hoped that people would gain an understanding of these different personality types and thus be able to identify what types other people are when they are interacting with them.

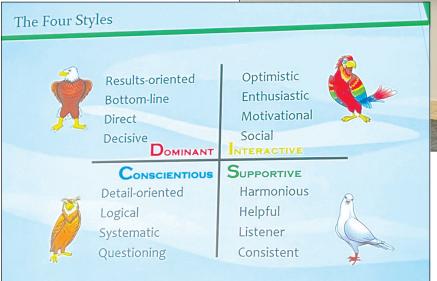

By doing this, people can learn to approach different personality types in different ways in order to improve communication and teamwork with them.

Giangrande has been to many different places to give talks similar to this in the hopes of helping people to work better with others around them.

"A lot of it is aimed at helping organizations, whether it be schools, different businesses, anywhere that is looking to improve their team building," Giangrande said.

If anyone has further questions about these personality types, they are welcome to reach out to Giangrande at wgiangrande123@gmail.com.

Certified Facilitator from Take Flight Learning Will Giangrande broke down the traits of the DISC personality types.

Hopkins keeps streak alive at Speedway 95

HERMON, ME – Since D.J. Shaw won the Granite State Pro Stock Series' Maine debut in 2016, every race in the Pine Tree State had been won by a Mainer leading into Sunday afternoon's showdown at Speedway 95.

And July winner Mike Hopkins kept that streak alive, picking up the win at his home track for a clean sweep of both visits to the Hermon, Maine, third-mile.

The penultimate round of the GSPSS title chase thrust full-season challengers Evan Beaulieu and Casey Call into a Vacationland turf war, with past Speedway 95 winners Hopkins and Josh St. Clair leading the charge alongside reigning champion Travis Benjamin, still winless at the historic speedway.

St. Clair and Hopkins topped the charts in time trials, with Dave Farrington, Jr. clocking in third. Beaulieu qualified fifth and Call eighth, both thinking about the big picture as the green flag flew.

Unencumbered by the bigger picture,

Hopkins drove to the front, putting on a clinic in front of the hometown fans. Benjamin was Hopkins' biggest threat, but he could not catch Hopkins in the final laps, coming up about four seconds shy at the checkered flag.

St. Clair settled for third, with Ryan Deane and Farrington rounding out an all-Maine top five.

Nick Jenkins was sixth, with title contenders Beaulieu and Call seventh and eighth. Veteran Gary Smith and Granite Stater Bobby Frappier rounded out the top ten.

Beaulieu now carries a 21-point advantage over Call into the season finale, with fans assured of a first-time GSPSS champion when the dust settles.

The GSPSS' 13th season concludes on Oct. 6 at Lee USA Speedway, where the championship will be decided as part of Russ Conway's Oktoberfest. Details of the championship finale will be released soon.

STCC starting early childhood program

SPRINGFIELD - Springfield Technical Community College, Holyoke-Chicopee-Springfield Head Start (HCS) and dignitaries announced the opening of an HCS early childhood program on the STCC campus.

The opening of the facility will provide affordable child care for qualifying families in the region, as well as learning and training opportunities for STCC students.

The announcement came at a ribbon cutting ceremony in front of the new Head Start location in Building 14. Earlier in the year, the Association of Community College Trustees (ACCT) and the National Head Start Association (NHSA) initiated a partnership to increase the number of Head Start programs co-located on community college campuses. STCC is the first community college in Western Massachusetts to host a Head Start center.

Also attending the ribbon cutting were members of the Springfield state delegation, STCC trustees and faculty as well as HCS Head Start board mem-

At the STCC campus location, HCS Head Start will provide services in one of the historic brick buildings located on the south side of the campus near State Street. HCS Head Start will have two classrooms, one for infants and toddlers, and a preschool classroom.

The partnership will strengthen workforce development opportunities for educators, said HCS Head Start Chief Executive Officer Nicole Blais.

"This exciting partnership will allow us to provide access to affordable care for qualifying students," Blais said. "We also will collaborate with STCC's early childhood education program and give students the opportunity to do their student teaching.'

HCS Head Start will provide internship opportunities for students studying in various disciplines across the STCC campus.

"This partnership allows us to create a pipeline to employment for future early childhood educators," siasm for the new partnership. Research shows access to child care can remove barriers for students with children.

'We are thrilled to welcome HCS Head Start to our campus," he said. "We very much view this collaboration as a version of what is termed in the field as a 'lab school,' with a focus on workforce development - our students deeply embedded with Head Start programming and teaching. On the cusp of the 60th anniversary of Head Start, how exciting to formalize this partnership in Springfield."

Springfield Mayor Domenic J. Sarno said, "I want to thank Nicole Blais, CEO of HCS Head Start, and her dedicated staff for everything they do for our students and the community. I also want to thank STCC President John Cook and team for being great partners to our Springfield.

"The importance of strong early childhood education cannot be overstated," Sarno said. "We will continue to invest in our students, families and youth who are furthering their education and bring them the tools and opportunities they need to succeed. There is no limit to what our young people can accomplish and my administration will continue to do what we can to make sure that our youth have the skills and opportunities to succeed in life.'

In February 2024, the Association of Community College Trustees (ACCT), along with partner National Head Start Association (NHSA), announced the launch of the Kids on Campus initiative to bring more Head Start programs to community college campuses throughout the United States. The joint project offers a practical, commonsense approach to solving challenges in child care and education, according to the ACCT announcement.

The ACCT stated that qualifying student parents receive free, high quality child care and early education for their families from the Head Start program. Colleges obtain an expert partner to operate on-site child care from Head Start, which also has the ability to apply funding to retrofit buildings on campus.

a two thirds majority vote meant two thirds of the council body that was present for the meeting.

It also stated that all ordinances or parts of ordinances not consistent with this ruling would be repealed.

In past discussions, several counilors had raised their concerns with this ordinance.

City Council President Tessa Murphy-Romboletti did not want ordinances to need a two thirds majority to

"It just gives us little space to make change...a very small minority can stop an ordinance from passing even if a majority of people on the council think it's a great ordinance change," Murphy-Romboletti said.

Additionally, Murphy-Romboletti felt that the ordinance is not what Former Councilor Todd McGee would have wanted, and he was the one to initially bring the matter to the council's attention.

Councilor Juan Anderson-Burgos had voted for this ordinance prior to the mayoral veto, but afterward he gave it further consideration and decided he did not agree with it.

"I look at the work I've spent in this room over the years," Councilor Juan Anderson-Burgos said. "I feel that this rule congests all the work...so I'm changing my mind."

Other councilors were frustrated that people were initially changing their minds on supporting this ordinance. Councilor Kevin Jourdain felt that the councilors who had changed their mind on the ordinance after veto only did so because the mayor had disapproved the ordinance.

"After a year of discussion, they got what they wanted but now the mayor is opposed so people are changing their votes," Jourdain had said.

Additionally, many councilors felt that this was the best compromise they could come up with on this matter.

"I would like to remind my colleagues that we spent a long time coming to a compromise," Councilor Linda Vacon said. "I don't think there is anybody in the room for whom this was the perfect answer, and yet we came to a compromise with an 11-2 vote, and yet the mayor chose to veto it and this is really a matter for this body to be determining."

With this information in mind, the council took the vote to override the veto and this time it passed, with only Murphy-Romboletti, Anderson-Burgos and Councilor Meagan Magrath-Smith voting against it.

She graduated from MHC in 1948, and married her husband George Bernard Jr. later that year.

Soon after, when she was only 23 she won $100 from a New York radio program and used it to start the Golden Age Club.

This was the first club of its kind in the country and the club persists even to this day. The group meets every Wednesday at 1 p.m. and they are welcoming new members.

"It's for seniors that get together and enjoy their company, they have many things going on at the senior center, whether it is bingo, exercising or musical things, it really is a great organization," Divine said.

Bernard and the other members of the club wanted to have a building for seniors, and she was the honorary chairperson of the drive that eventually got the building built in Holyoke.

Throughout all of this, Bernard continued working at the WHYN/AM, which eventually moved to Springfield and became the WHYN-TV/AM/FM where she did a live daily program called the Barbara Bernard show.

She also wrote columns for several newspapers, including the Daily Hampshire Gazette, the Holyoke Transcript-Telegram, the Sunday Republican, the Morning Union and the Daily News.

"Everybody knew her, everybody read her columns, the Mayor of Springfield looked forward to her column and then would call her," Divine

Later in her life, Bernard was awarded the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Valley Club, being the first female and person from Holyoke

She was also chosen as the Citizen of the Year by the Holyoke St. Patrick's Day Parade Committee.

In her obituary, which Bernard herself wrote, she shared how special a day this was for her.

"The year I received the St. Patrick's award and rode in Harry Craven's convertible in the parade was the sunniest day ever and as we drove along the parade route, I realized my life had been touched by hundreds of parade viewers lining the streets greeting me, hugging me, calling out times when we had been together," she wrote.

These are just two of the many awards she received throughout her lifetime, all of which she truly deserved.

Bernard will not be easily forgotten by Holyoke thanks to all she has done for its inhabitants.

Highway to Hope Coordinator and Production Manager at Hope for Holyoke Kevin LeBeau welcomed everyone to the Recovery Day celebration and flag raising.

The Recovery Month flag was raised outside of City Hall as a part of Holyoke's Recovery Day celebration.

City Councilor Israel Rivera shared his own familys' struggles with addiction and reminded people that recovery is possible.

Turley photos by Quinn Suomala

Those marching in celebration of Recovery Day held up a variety of signs.

As the Recovery Day celebration attendees marched through the city, they had a variety of chants including "What do we have? Hope! What do we love? Holyoke" and "Recovery is possible! ¡Sí se puede!"

attendees marched back to Veterans Park where more guest speakers gave speeches and attendees were able to enjoy food and the resources available from different community organizations.

Throughout the event, there were also live intakes available to treatment facilities, thanks to Highway to Hope.

For LeBeau, this event is about the unity it brings to all who attend.

"Every person, every family and every community is the focal point to this Recovery Month," LeBeau said.

His favorite part of the day is seeing everyone come together and celebrate the progress they have made in fighting addiction.

"The highlight of the day for all of us is, whether we were here 20 minutes or 20 years, it's watching those individuals walk down the street with a sign saying you don't have to live the way you are anymore," LeBeau said. "There is a solution to the problem at hand and...we're here to help people find that solution."

This event is held as part of National Recovery Month, which occurs every September.

"It promotes and supports new evidence-based treatment and recovery practices," LeBeau said. "This nation's strong and proud recovery community, such as Holyoke and the surrounding areas, and the dedication of service providers and community partnerships make recovery in all forms possible."

LeBeau works with Hope for Holyoke as well as many other community organizations in order to put this celebration on.

He is grateful for every single person who contributed their time and funding to helping make this event, and the work the community organizations do, possible.

"Our team is not just Hope for Holyoke, it's the entire recovery community," LeBeau said. "That is how we pass the message and spread hope to those in need."

He has seen that with the work and support from the community, people in need can get the support they deserve as they work to fight against the disease of addiction.

"Addiction recovery process is possible for anyone, if they choose to seek it, and that's what we do here at Hope for Holyoke," LeBeau said.

Hope for Holyoke is a peer led organization that works to support those in the community who are struggling with the disease of addiction. Anyone is welcome to come and get the support they need.

"Addiction doesn't close, it is a 24/7 killer and what we do is try to do what we can to fight it on a daily basis," LeBeau said.

To keep up with the events Hope for Holyoke puts on, go to their Facebook page titled Hope for Holyoke Recovery Center. You can also call their office at 413-561-1020 or go
